The pilgrimage to Mount Grizim on the Harvest and Firstborn

By: Menashe Ben Yitzhak Tzedaka

It took place on Sunday 1.6.25 attended by about 900 members of the community men, women and taf. Alongside the pilgrims were attached about 60 photographers from photography clubs from all over the country.

One of the pictures that impress me I chose to share with my friends.

White trail of worshipers at 4:30 a.m. proceeded to the next station during the prayer. In the background, the conservative neighborhood in Hargrizim is lit.

I heard moving impressions of how they experienced the Ascension. May we be blessed to celebrate together for decades more. With Israel live!!!

Ben Sedaka Tells Story

The priest Av-Hasada son of the 573 Jacob son of Aharan, may God have mercy [1880-1959]

By: Benim Charity

The Priest Ab-Hisda b. High Priest Yaqob b. Aharon [1880-1959]

By: Benyamim Tsedaka

The Cohen Av-Hasada [= Abu Elhassan] was born in Nhammer and lived all his days in Nhammer, in the old neighborhood and at the end of his days in the new neighborhood [in 1943-1959].

He and the priest Abraham ben Finhas stood for the service of his father Jacob ben Aharan at the inauguration of the school in the old neighborhood of Nemv, sponsored by the American philanthropist Edward Kirk Warren. They were helped by the young priest Amram ben of the "Hag" Yitzhak, who guided the girls' class.

The police Yaakov Ben Aharan was the school principal. The institution next to Beit Kadri was established in 1903 until the early twenties, and then it was managed by the Zionist administration until the 1940s.

The priest Av-Hisada also taught his sons with all the young generation, cloth by cloth he divided the Hazonas in the old synagogue and in his recent years hezanas in the new synagogue in the new neighborhood in Nafom. The priest Av-Hasada became known then in the voice of the Arib beautifully.

The priest Av-Hasada antiqued many books of Torah and prayer and translated books of Halachah and history books from Western yeast and from Armenian to Hebrew. He kept a continuous correspondence on the Conservative heritage with the researcher Rabbi Moshe Gaster from England, who sent him a financial reward for his help, until Rabbi Gaster's death in 1939.

Priest Av-Hisada was adored by his students and all members of his congregation. His death was a great loss. Two sons Joseph and Aharan were high priests and the third son Yafeth is these days Deputy High Priest. The priest Av-Hasada had two daughters, success and competition, who established glorious families, have mercy on the Lord.

Series: Elements in Religion in Late Antiquity

Israel and its Heirs in Late Antiquity

Published online by Cambridge University Press: 08 April 2025

Andrew Tobolowsky

Summary

This Element explores constructions of Israelite identity among Jewish, Samaritan Israelites, and Christian authors in Late Antiquity, especially early Late Antiquity. It identifies three major strategies for claiming an Israelite identity between these three groups: a 'biological' strategy, a 'biology plus' strategy, and an 'abiological' strategy, referring to the difference between Jewish claims to Israel premised on exclusive biological descent, Samaritan Israelite acknowledgments of shared descent, and the 'Verus Israel' tradition in Christianity, which disavows the importance of descent. Using this framework, it makes various general conclusions about the construction of ethnic identity itself, including the inadequacy of treating descent claims as the sine qua non of ethnicity and role played in any given vision of ethnic identity by the individual creativity of a given author.

Samaritans and Jews in History and Tradition

Changing Perspectives 10 By Ingrid Hjelm

First Published 2024

ABSTRACT

This volume presents an anthology of 19 seminal studies, some for the first time in English, which explore the history and tradition of the ancient relationship between Samaritans and Jews.

The book is arranged into three parts: Methods, Traditions, and History; Samaritan and Jewish Pentateuchs; and Studies in Bible and Tradition, each of which is chronologically ordered. It represents a collection of the author's previous publications on the relationship between Samaritans and Jews, expanding and supplementing the conclusions of her published books. Recent archaeological developments on Mount Gerizim have demonstrated that our paradigms for writing the ancient histories of the kingdoms and provinces of Samaria and Judah in the Iron II, Persian, and Hellenistic periods must change. These developments also affect how we evaluate and read ancient literary traditions, and several chapters offer challenging new perspectives on well-known themes, narratives, and compositions in this subject area.

Samaritans and Jews in History and Tradition: Changing Perspectives 10 will be of interest to students and scholars of biblical studies, theology, comparative religion, the ancient Near East, and in particular Samaritan and Jewish studies.

Etienne Nodet examines the Samaritans and their religion, using Jewish and Christian sources, including rabbinic literature and the latest archaeology. Nodet tells the story of the Samaritans and their religion, showing how they were faithful to a classical form of monotheism.

Nodet traces the Samaritan story from more recent to more ancient times. He begins by looking at the importance of the Samaritans in the time of Josephus and the New Testament, taking in the area formed by Galilee, Samaria, and Judea and recognizing how this corresponds approximately to Canaan at the time of Joshua, between the Jordan and the Mediterranean. He then examines the account of 2 Kings 17, which shows the Samaritans as descendants of the settlers sent by the Assyrians, who were initiated to a certain Yahwism after the fall of the kingdom of Israel (North) in 721 BC. Next Nodet looks at the time of the Maccabean crisis, when the Samaritans separated from the Jews, showing how before then there was a peaceful coexistence.

Finally, Nodet turns to the Persian period, showing how after the return from exile there was a restoration of the Babylonianderived form of religion, which the local Israelites (including the Samaritans) opposed. Nodet contends that, as such, the Samaritan religion, with its succession of high priests up to the present day, and is of 'immemorial permanence', linking to the earliest worship of YHWH in Israel.

Abstract

This article reexamines the so-called Abisha Scroll, a manuscript of the Samaritan Hebrew Pentateuch compiled from several heterogeneous parts and held in the highest esteem by the Samaritan community because of its allegedly biblical age. Previous studies on the origin of the storied scroll are reviewed and supplemented with codicological details that have not previously been considered. As a result of these analyses, it is possible to identify the compiler of the scroll who was most likely also the scribe of its most important component: Åbīša ban Fī'nās ban Yūsəf, a scribe and author of piyyutim in the fourteenth century.
